

Pope Pius Cancels His Christmas Eve Audience With Cardinals, Court

Acting Upon Physician's Advice Roman Prelate Gives in Reluctantly; Will See Cardinals Individually in His Sick Room.

CALM NIGHT

Speculation as to Successor Grows as Realization Spreads Pope May Never Recover.

Vatican City, Dec. 19 (AP).—Pope Pius, reported recovering from partial paralysis of his lower legs, today cancelled his usual Christmas Eve audience with the College of Cardinals and the Papal Court.

The 79-year-old Holy Father reluctantly ordered invitations recalled upon the advice of his physicians, prelates said.

Informed sources said the pontiff was impressed by the fact that every unusual exertion during the last few days had been followed by a period of weakness.

Instead of receiving the cardinals, the Pope will see them individually during the next few days in his sick room.

Again last night, doctors kept a constant vigil over the Pope, nearing the close of his 80th year, to quiet his sleep when shortness of breath caused him to gasp and stir in his bed.

Within and outside the Vatican, Catholics speculated over the pontiff's successor when prelates in the Holy See disclosed that Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, had taken over temporary direction of ecclesiastical affairs.

May Never Recover.

The realization grew that Pope Pius might never recover completely.

He passed a reasonably calm night, gaining much more rest than the night before, but reliable reports said he had not slept soundly for several nights.

His physicians were anxious that he be kept from aggravating the congested blood condition which forced him to bed two weeks ago in great pain from legs so swollen they were partly paralyzed.

His condition, it was reported, oscillatingly, had become "oscillating"—his resistance continuing to increase when he is reposed but diminishing with effort and activity.

It was disclosed the Holy Father had been given food in small quantities at two-hour intervals for the past two days because high blood pressure hampered his breathing and made it inadvisable for him to eat more heartily.

60 Possible Heirs

Since modern custom dictates that a new Pope be chosen from among the cardinals, theoretically there are 60 possible heirs to the papacy.

Actually, however, there are few from whom the selection would be made.

Advanced age, birth outside Italy and diverse other barriers to the highest office in Roman Catholicism dim whatever hopes most may have.

Three princes of the church are regarded now by informed Vatican sources as most likely successors:

Eugenio Pacelli, secretary of state.

Elia Dalla Costa, archbishop of Florence.

Luigi Lavitrani, archbishop of Palermo.

Although Pacelli is the most prominent of the Cardinals by virtue of his office, Vatican prelates said his name might be overlooked when a new Pope is chosen.

Plans Are Pushed.

Washington, Dec. 19 (AP).—The labor unions behind John L. Lewis, already at grips with steel and glass, pushed their plans today for a test showdown in the automobile industry. Lewis said "many thousands" recently have joined the United Automobile Workers, an affiliate of his committee on industrial organization. The union decided yesterday to ask collective bargaining agreement with General Motors, with hints of a strike if its plan is rejected.

Cash for Christmas.

Rome, Dec. 19 (AP).—Premier Mussolini rewarded Italy's champion mothers with cash today. One mother from each of the 35 provinces received a purse of 5,000 lire (about $260) and an insurance policy worth 1,000 lire ($52). The 35 mothers have given birth to 312 children, all of whom are living.

BRUNETTE GETS LIFE TERM

Shackled and handcuffed to an officer, Harry Brunette, Midwestern badman, is shown leaving federal court in Trenton, N. J., after he had been sentenced to life imprisonment under the Lindbergh law. Duke of Windsor Shows Flashes of His Old Self Today

Enzesfeld, Austria, Dec. 19 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor, intent on building himself up and holding his weight at a healthy 142 pounds, arose early today for a vigorous round of setting-up exercises.

His friends said the abdicated monarch intended to regain his vitality in every possible way. The trying days when he struggled between love and empire have left their mark, they explained.

His regular program, after the setting-up exercises, calls for a round of golf and nine pins. Then he submits to the pummeling of a 233-pound French masseur.

The most regular sleeping hours that he has known in years, his intimates added, have helped in bringing him back to health.

The cares of state seemed far from his mind late last night as the duke wound up his athletic day with a game of nine-pins on the 50-foot alley some 600 yards from the chateau.

Windsor whistled and sang and doled with the American-born Baroness de Rothschild during the game.

At a newly installed bar, the duke poured a Scotch and soda for the baroness and then one for himself. At the baroness' suggestion he joined his clear tenor with her soprano in the "Hoch Vom Dachstein An" from the peak of the Dachstein—a favorite of all rollers.

Then Windsor, in fluent "Wien" (Continued on Page Seven)

Condemnation Unit Viewed Lands on Friday, Lackawack

Friday members of Delaware Section No. 6, Condemnation Commission appointed to hear claims arising out of the taking of lands for the construction of the New York city water project at Lackawack, met and viewed the lands of several claimants. The commissioners are Messrs. Flanagan, Aronowitz and Graham.

Among the parcels viewed Friday afternoon were those of Claimants Empt, Gosselin, Sheeley and Barthel all located at Lackawack.

Accompanying the commissioners were Attorneys Plunkett and Kaufman who appear for claimants. Harry R. Bright and Vincent Connelly of the legal staff of the city of New York, and Edward P. Ward, engineer for the city of New York.

This morning the taking of testimony was first taken and among the witnesses who were examined was James D. Shields of Lackawack, one of the old time residents of the locality and one of the large property owners in the area to be affected.

110,000 on Strike

Manchester, Eng., Dec. 19 (AP).—Five hundred cotton mills employing 110,000 operatives will stand idle in the great Lancashire textile area Monday unless there is an eleventh hour settlement. Negotiators handling a wage dispute had issued no statement at noon today, when strike notices became effective. The negotiations, however, were continuing this afternoon.

Should negotiations fail completely and the three-day "armistice" expire without the Generalissimo's return, they were under orders to smash through to his rescue.

One notable victim of the mutiny, in which it was first reported the Generalissimo himself had been slain, was officially announced to be Shao Yuen-Shun, political historian and member of Chiang's staff.

Shao died December 15 as a result of wounds received during the coup d'état.

Shao was a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and Columbia University and had edited Chinese newspapers in San Francisco, St. Louis, Toronto and Victoria, Canada.

The belief increased today that Marshal Chang was in complete control of the elements opposing the Nanking government but some quarters persisted in contending he would be influenced by the desires and demands of his associates.

One of the few doubts of a quick and peaceful end to the civil war was expressed in these circles where it was pointed out the marshal's subordinates were unlikely to permit him to make a settlement that did not guarantee their safety as well as his own.

It was believed that the following terms were being considered as a basis for ending the civil war: Immediate release of Generalissimo Chiang.

Edie from China for Marshal Chang.

Submission of Chiang's rebellious army to the pacification commission of Shao and Su-tsun provinces at Teiwanfu.

Third Reich Faces Bare Bread Bins by April, Stringent Orders Issued

Food Purchases Would Drain Germany's Last Gold Reserves; Feelers Put Out for Economic Aid Abroad.

NAZI QUANDARY

Eden Points Out Food Lack Due to Vast Rearmament Program by Hitlerites.

Berlin, Dec. 19.—The third Reich strove today to find the bread it must have by spring.

In iron clamp, by Nazi decree, pinched the already slim trickle of butter and fat products to the German consumer. Now, experts affirmed, the Reich must face the prospect of empty domestic bread bins by April.

To get the wheat to make the bread that Germany eats means going abroad—and there lie grave difficulties.

The stringencies imposed on German households in preserving dwindling food supplies were disclosed yesterday by the issuance of ration cards for butter and lard.

Under new orders allowances of fat will be prorated according to the size of families. Purchases will be limited to 80 per cent on October consumption each month, starting January 1.

Agricultural estimates agreed Germany must increase wheat importations after having reduced them in 1935 to 160,000 tons as compared with 605,000 tons the year before.

By April, according to estimates, considered reliable, the Reich's wheat reserves will have been exhausted. But, advised experts of the ministry of economics, food purchases would drain Germany's last gold reserves.

Feelers have been put out for economic aid abroad, especially to Great Britain.

Impoverished by Arms

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, replied that help would be far easier to provide were there not proof Germany's economic quandary arose from the nation's vast rearmament program.

In response, German economists contend the whole recovery program of the Nazi regime is so dependent on war ministry contracts disaster would follow sudden suspension of rearming.

War industries are booming and it is Nazidom's proud claim that unemployment has been reduced from 6,000,000 at the start of Nazi rule in 1933 almost to 1,000,000 today because of the introduction of compulsory labor and military service.

As one escape from the vicious circle, Finance Minister Hjalmar Schacht and Joachim von Ribbentrop, ambassador to London, have preached the gospel of colonies.

Whatever merits are contained in the proposition Germany's war-lord possessions be returned, authorities declared, it would take some time to realize the benefits Schacht claims.

Germany's worries until the next crops are harvested, therefore, have become a paramount issue.

Everywhere one hears the ominous word "Kriegswirtschaft," meaning war economy. Germans who remember the lean war years of 1917 and 1918 comment in their private letters that the government's food rationing plan is "just like in war."

BENNETT ACTS IN ELECTROLYSIS CASE

New York, Dec. 19 (AP).—The office of Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., moved today to stop the application of electrolysis treatments in beauty parlors by anyone except a licensed physician.

An announcement of action planned said it followed the conviction in Bronx Court of Special Sessions of Mary Lehman, Bronx beautician, on a charge of practicing medicine without a license.

Request for Wedding.

The Hague, The Netherlands, Dec. 19 (AP).—Crown Princess Juliana and her fiancé, Prince Bernhard of Lippe-Biesterfeld, took their first legal step today toward their marriage January 7. While cheering crowds gathered in front of the 16th-century town hall the royal couple drove up in a sleek roadster. Just like any other Dutch couple they had come to ask the permission of Mayor S. J. R. De Meuchy for their wedding.

Realization For Hull

Buenos Aires, Dec. 19 (AP).—The chief objectives of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's 5,000-mile trip to South America were slated for realization today. A primary session of the Inter-American Peace Conference was expected—among a score of other contentions and resolutions—to approve four projects inspired or drafted by the head of the United States delegation.

Comments Demanded.

At the same time Frontiersman Francisco Largo Caballero banned Christmas merry-making at the front and urged the militia that millions who have been leaving the lines and going home for dinner should be disciplined.

Education Board Hits Back At Council Report; Claims It Critical, Not Solution

Three Dismissed In Bruno Escape, Wide Search Made

Pottsville, Pa., Dec. 19 (AP).—County Prison Warden Herbert Goslin and two aides were dismissed today for "gross negligence" because of the escape of Joseph Bruno, serving a life term for the Kelayres election eve massacre.

Fired by Goslin were Deputy Warden Robert Walker and Prison Guard Irving, with whom Bruno went to a dentist's office just before his escape yesterday.

The county commissioners also offered $1,000 reward for the capture of the life-terminer.

The commissioners named Edward Houser, deputy warden, as acting warden.

Earlier five kinsmen of Bruno were ordered removed today from the Schuylkill county jail to the Eastern State Penitentiary at Philadelphia.

Both Judge Benjamin R. Jones of Luzerne county, who presided at the Bruno trials, and Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, who came to Pottsville to investigate Joseph Bruno's flight from a prison guard yesterday, ordered the removal of Joseph's relatives.

The kinsmen, all of whom were convicted with Bruno in the Kelayres "massacre" in 1934, are:

Joseph's brother, Philip; his sons, James and Alfred; Arthur, son of Philip Bruno and Anthony Orlando, a nephew of Joseph and Philip.

Philip is serving a life sentence. Alfred and James Bruno and Orlando are serving 10 to 20 years.

Police of nine states hunted today for Bruno.

Pennsylvania officials, on personal orders from Governor George H. Earle, began an immediate investigation, prefaced by the charge of Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti that escape "was accomplished through a well planned conspiracy of certain public officials and others."

Bruno, former Republican leader in the hilltop mining town of Kelayres, walked away from the guard, Guy Irving, yesterday, ostensibly to go to a dentist's office while Irving parked his car. Bruno never showed up at the office.

Bruno, a former Schuylkill county detective, was convicted on each of three charges of murder in the Kelayres "massacre" in which five Democratic paraders were slain. His brother, Philip, also received a life term and four other kinsmen were sentenced to prison for shorter periods.

Two reports today offered the possibility that Bruno had left Pottsville in an airplane and was well-supplied with cash.

Prison Warden Herbert Goslin said Bruno had received "thousands of dollars" in his cell 24 hours before he escaped.

Goslin declined to say how Bruno obtained the money, but he asserted the former Republican leader had been granted unrestricted visiting privileges with members of his family by two Republican county commissioners, Alvin Maurer and Philip Ehrig.

On the same day Bruno received the money, Goslin declared, his eldest daughter, Mrs. Antoinette Billig, visited him four times.

County Detective Louis D. Buono said search had been started for an airplane which landed mysteriously at the nearby hometown airport yesterday and took off in a southerly direction a few minutes later.

"Records in Principle"

San Francisco, Dec. 19 (AP).—Maritime strike negotiations sought to whip into written agreements today "records in principle" of shipowners and unionized personnel, striving to end the 51-day paralysis of Pacific Coast marine commerce. One meeting was called between employers and sailors and marine engineers, who verbally have considered union demands for control of hiring halls, an employer stand for enforcement penalties, and the workers' demand for higher wages.

World Cruise Operation

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP).—One of the world's smallest railroads—the 5.3-mile Middleburg and Schenectady—sought federal court advice today on just how to resume operation. John R. Bingham, a trustee of the eastern New York, one-locale road, was scheduled to ask Federal Judge Frank Cooper to determine how locally to discontinue service on the carrier caught in a "stop" and "go" impasse created by state and national utility commission actions.

Heiselman Asks Herzog to Place Men Back at Work

The Mayor and City Engineer Moved to Albany Today in Interest of 100 Men Laid Off by Local WPA—Also Seek Approval of Projects.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman is in Albany today conferring with Lester Herzog, state WPA administrator, in regard to the 100 and more men who have been laid off by the local WPA, and asking that the men who have been laid off be restored to the payroll.

The mayor was accompanied to Albany by City Engineer James Norton, and in addition to the request to have the men who are now laid off restored to the payroll the mayor is seeking approval of projects that have been submitted but not acted upon.

Within the past few days over 100 men have been laid off by the local WPA in carrying out a 20 per cent reduction in the working forces in Kingston.

Mayor Heiselman believes that with Christmas but a few days away that it was a most inopportune time to reduce the working forces.

Mayor Heiselman was seen this morning just before he left for Albany and in reply to questions stated that in addition to conferring with Mr. Herzog in regard to the men who have been laid off that he expected to seek the approval of a project submitted some time ago, but not yet approved, for the removal of the old trolley rails in the streets over which the trolley road operated. The mayor said that this would be a good time to have the rails taken up as he had been informed that old rails were bringing $25 a ton as junk.

The mayor and city engineer will also take up with Mr. Herzog plans for next year's WPA projects in Kingston, to see if a program of work could not be approved at this time so that it would be possible to keep idle men employed next year.

Matter of Finances.

The matter of finances was gone into at some length and several of the members of the board expressed the opinion that to reject the non-resident students would be contrary to the best financial interests.

It was pointed out that the total amount which the taxpayers of the city of Kingston raised last year by direct school taxation was $100,000. The revenue from non-residents had been about $125,000. Elimination of the non-resident students it was stated, might make it possible to reduce the teaching staff by some 20 teachers with that saving in salaries but the cost of building operation would be practically the same as now and by eliminating the non-resident tuition from our revenue it would be necessary to saddle upon the taxpayers of the city a very considerable amount of the city's $125,000. This would mean that school taxes would have to go up to meet the increased cost.

This increased cost would be about $5.50 per thousand it was stated since for each additional $100,000 added to the school levy there is a consequent increase in school tax rate of about $4.

"For the same amount of money which we would be compelled to pay in increased taxes by the rejection of non-resident students we could almost pay the cost of a junior high school," said one member of the board. "If out of town students were rejected our taxes would go up and we would get nothing additional for them while if we spent the same amount of money and kept the non-resident students we would have a junior high school."

Newsinger Concluded.

New York, Dec. 25 (Special).—John Newsinger, alias Nelson, of Kingston, arrested with four others, accused of conspiracy to distill alcohol in a barn on the North farm, Burnside, was convicted by a jury in United States District Court here Friday afternoon.

At low water visitors to Schwal-lenbach in Austria are always shown the Devil's Bridge, a ridge of rock with which Satan tried to dam the Danube, legend says. Christmas Pageant at Redeemer Church

Sunday evening, December 20, at 7:30 o'clock, the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer will present its annual Christmas pageant. This year's production is entitled, "At the Door of the Inn," and has been written by Martha Race.

The scene is laid on the street in front of the Inn at Bethlehem; the rejection by the inn-keeper of Mary and Joseph is portrayed. Other guests come and find place but the lowly Nazarenes arrive too late and none is willing to give up his room to them. A humble beggar, who is also rejected because of his poverty, upbraids the inn-keeper for his harshness. Taking compassion upon the homeless travelers, the beggar leads them to a cave in the surrounding hill country where the Holy Child is born. The pageant shows the coming of the shepherds and the wise men, all of whom pause before the inn to seek directions. The beggar happens to be on hand at each arrival and gladly takes them to their desired destination. When the inn-keeper learns of character and nature of his would-be guests and the distinguished persons who seek them, he regrets that he found no room for them.

The pageant has required a great deal of work in preparation. The coaching has been under the guidance of Miss Gertrude Egbertson and Mrs. Adam Thiel. The cast includes 36 participants. Costumes had to be designed and made for all of them. Specially devised properties will be in place in the channel of the church to provide the setting. Rehearsals have been in progress for more than a month in order that a finished production may be assured.

Christmas Pageant At Trinity M.E. Church

The Christmas Pageant of the Holy Grail, a beautiful interpretation of the legend of King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table, will be given this year by the choir of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church. The pageant, which will take the place of the regular evening service at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening, will follow directly after the White Christmas service in which offerings of food and gifts wrapped in white paper will be laid at the altar.

The opening scene shows the dream of King Arthur, in which he sees the Christ Child in the manger at Bethlehem with the shepherds and the wise men coming to offer their homage and their gifts. In the following scene, King Arthur calls his knights together to tell them of his vision, and sends them, at their own request, out into the world on a search for the perfect gift which may be the means of bringing again to Camelot the Holy Grail. While the other knights are away on their quest, Modred, the false knight, tries again to stir up strife and dissension within the palace. After a year's search, the knights return to Camelot, each one bringing the gift which he hopes will prove to be the perfect gift for Christ. But the perfect gift is not found until Launcelot returns, bringing with him Galahad, the pure in heart. When this new knight, "white, unstained, and true" joins the circle of fellowship, the Holy Grail again returns to Camelot to inspire the knights to greater endeavors than before.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 19, 1936

A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR.

The air is filled with expressions of good cheer or hopes for the future in the confident expectation of a good year in 1937, which is now in the oming. The records seem to indicate that the new year will be a prosperous one. The feeling of confident expectation for the future is a very satisfactory one. Every one hopes that the tide of better times will continue to rise. Still this is not the time to indulge in extravagance or foolhardy mortgaging of the future.

In 1929 we were told that we had entered a new era of prosperity and that the old economic laws do not count any more. We paid for that mistake and we will make another one if we imagine that the economic world has suddenly been changed by some new golden formula. The old economic principles have not been altered. We have gone through the valley of the depression and are climbing on the other side of the hill.
 But we must remember that there are still millions of unemployed and that our economic problems are not yet solved. The national budget has not been balanced. Neither have many state, local and family budgets.

It is a very healthy state to be hopeful of the future but let us not get out on a dangerous limb by coaxing ourselves to believe that new economic cure-alls have been invented.

JOBS FOR ALL AGES

Recent discussion about the problem of finding jobs for men over 40, against whom employers are said to be discriminating, brings to light an interesting experiment of Henry Ford's not generally known.

Some years ago when Henry Ford
 established a plant in Ypsilanti, Mich., he had a survey made of all age-groups in the community, showing the percentage of the population between 20 and 30, 30 and 40, 40
 and 50, and so on. Then when he started hiring workers, he "tried to reproduce in his plant an exact cross-section of the age distribution of the town." That is, he hired men in proportion to the number of people of their age living round about. He carried the plan out so thoroughly that he even employed men as old as 70.

And the result? Mr. Ford has pronounced himself satisfied. It was socially fair, and he didn't think the factory was handicapped or cheated.
 It was, of course, a fine service to the community. The present tendency is to fret out the older groups entirely from the ranks of industry, establishing a maximum age limit as low as 50 or 40, although the new social security plan doesn't apply until the age of 65. The practice is obviously unfair to the individuals affected and absurd from the viewpoint of community welfare.

BRITISH REPUBLICANISM

It was said a few days ago by Frederick S. Coombs, a prominent Labor Party member of the House of Commons, that a Republican party would arise in England if Edward VIII should abdicate, and he himself would become a Republican.

He used the term, of course, in the European rather than the American sense. There may now be a new party aiming to make Great Britain
 a republic. Royalty even in England is on the way out. The country, called a "democratic monarchy," is already virtually a republic, as are its dominions. If it became so in fact, the empire would probably fall
 to pieces.

GETTING AROUND CENSORS

The New York Times recently carried a long article about the Spanish civil war, written from the viewpoint principally of the rebels. A good many readers at once wrote in to complain that the Times had "joined a conspiracy against the republicans of the world."

by reminding readers that the newspaper had previously published another detailed, eye-witness story of the Spanish tragedy with the Madrid viewpoint. It pointed out that, where there exists such stern censorship
 as is exercised by each side in Spain,
 any news that gets through safely is quite likely to present a one-sided story. By getting two one-sided stories from opposite camps, the Times succeeded in dodging both censors. Its readers, by reading
 both, should have been able to arrive at some degree of the truth for themselves.

That opportunity to read all the available news and to judge for themselves where the truth lies is one of the priceless privileges of American newspaper readers.

STRONGER HOUSES

Houses will have to be built stronger in order to stand the impact of automobiles. It is incredible
 the way motorists lately have taken to ramming into dwellings. In Cleveland the other day a woman driving her car into her garage stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake
 and shot her car right through the back of the garage, across a vacant yard and smashed the side of a neighbor's house. A couple of days later in the same city, in the middle of the night, an errand driver plunged into an alley and rammed a house
 with such force that, besides smashing windows and buckling the floor,
 he shoved the building off its foundations.

There is no reason to think drivers
 will quit doing this sort of thing.
 They only get wilder and wilder. If a man's home is to be his "castle",
 he may have to build it like one.
 Solid stone might stop the automotive rams, if the walls were built thicker than usual, but perhaps reinforced concrete walls with a sheet
 of steel plate would serve the purpose better.

COLD WATER FOR BURNS

Some years ago it was my privilege to accompany a railway surgeon who was attending 30 cases resulting from a railway accident. He pointed out an engineer and fireman and told that a day or two as more than half the surface of their bodies had been badly burned. Death would be due to "shock" caused by the loss of fluids from the blood.

Since the tannic acid treatment for burns was discovered a few years ago the lives of many of these badly burned patients have been saved.
 Today every first aid kit or cabinet in industrial establishments has the tannic acid solution ready for use.
 And in households where tannic acid
 is not available strongly brewed tea
 is used as it contains the tannic acid.
 It is certainly surprising and very gratifying then to read of a newly discovered treatment for burns—the cold water treatment.

Dr. H. W. Rose, Seattle, in Northwest Medicine, describes the "Initial Cold Water Treatment for Burns."
 "When the patient is seen soon after the accident cold water is applied to the burned tissue after as much clothing as possible has been removed. Ordinary tap water is used. In the case of a small burned area of hand or foot, cold wet dressings are applied or the parts put completely under the water in basins containing cold water. In the case of extensive burns the patients are placed in a tub. The immediate results are favorable; patients with severe pain are relieved in a few seconds without the use of opium in any form. Patients in early shock often respond promptly without any other form of treatment, the weak and feeble pulse becoming slower and stronger, the blood pressure rising,
 and the patient's color assuming a normal appearance.

If, however, some time has passed before the patient is first seen, so that the state of shock is far advanced, other methods of treating shock must be used in addition to the cold water.

In this treatment by cold water
 the water is first at a temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit, being gradually warmed as the patient is able to bear the pain until after two hours
 the temperature is at body heat—
 about 98 F.

In severe cases, morphine is given at the end of the second hour, the dirt and dead tissue wiped away, the body dried by a hair dryer, and the tannic acid treatment then given.

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

SYNOPSIS. Philip Page, young publisher of the Warrenton
 Courier, falls in love with Sally Warren. She is staying with wealthy Mrs. Morris, who persuades Philip despite his campaign against her property-owning father to improve living conditions. Giles Benton, a detective engaged by Morris, picks up a scrapbook for an arson charge
 McDonald, a discharged mill
 worker Philip, believing Mc-Donald innocent, is fighting to save him. Sally, suspecting Benton of further underhandedness,
 trails him to a nearby resort.

Chapter 35
A Suspicious Character

Giles was at all perturbed over the presence of Hillegast. Sally had to admit he concealed it well. He seemed delighted to see her and made haste to introduce his companion.
 "May I present my old friend, Mrs.
 Picard?" he said smoothly. "She's spending a few days at Hillcrest on her way to Maine."

Sally was disappointed in Giles'
 companion. While they all chattered away about commonplaces, Sally examined Mrs. Picard for signs of deceit but was forced to admit that she had never seen a less mysterious woman.
 Mrs. Picard was at least 40, well groomed and, becomingly dressed.
 Her blond hair showed no traces of gray and her figure was youthful.
 She made herself agreeable and Bob
 was soon talking to her freely.

Sally withheld her judgment,
 watching Mrs. Picard as closely as Giles would let her. The woman's eyes were black and rather small.
 The contrast between the dark eyes
 and light hair made her appearance
 more attractive, but Sally finally decided that the eyes were rather unpleasant. They were very black and had a sort of metallic brilliancy that made them a little hard.

"I'm giving the Morris family a little vacation," smiled Giles Benton.
 "I'm afraid I've over-stayed my welcome in Warrenton."

"I'm sure Mr. Morris is glad to have you," said Sally primly. "He must find it very lonely in the house
 when Mrs. Morris is away."

"Let's get a boat and go out on the lake," suggested Bob. "They have them for rent. Would you like that, Sally?"

"I'd love it," said Sally. "Can we get a boat big enough for all four of us?"

"No use to try," said Giles. "Marty wouldn't go near a boat. She turns green at the very sight of water."
 Sally's heart beat very fast. She hoped Giles would not notice the effect of the name he had used. So this was "Marty" of the telephone conversation, the woman Giles Benton had advised to stay out of town, and whom he had told that "everything is all right." What part could this middle-aged, well dressed woman
 play in any of Giles Benton's schemes?

There was nothing for it but to ride in the boat Bob had secured, although Sally parted with Giles and Marty reluctantly. Now that she had found Marty, how was she to take the next step and find out why Marty was here?

A cool breeze blew across the lake and fanned Sally's cheeks. The shore
 they skirted was lovely and wooded.
 Timber grew to the very edge of the water, making a beautiful fringe of green around the lake.

"Most of the land around here belongs to an estate that's never been settled," Bob was saying. "That's why it's still pretty wild. Timber hasn't been cut and nobody lives on the place. I've been out in these woods to hunt."

"I don't like it over there," shivered Sally. "It looks as if there were really wild animals to shoot."

"The only animals I ever found were rabbits and squirrels, and a few birds," grinned Bob. "But just as you say—we'll head for the open water."

The Sullen Motorcyclist

It was late when they left Hillcrest, but Sally looked in vain for another glimpse of Giles Benton and Marty. A light rain had begun to fall and Sally and Bob opened the car to the fresh scent of the woods and meadows they were passing. A few miles from Hillcrest, Bob stopped
 the car with a sudden pressure of brakes that threw Sally forward in the seat, bruising her head against the windshield.

"I'm sorry," said Bob anxiously.
 "Did you get hurt, Sally?"

"I'm all right," Sally pressed a handkerchief against the aching spot
 on her forehead and peered out at the dark road.

"Hello," said a voice from the road
 about leading a hand here?"

"It's the fellow we passed on the motorcycle," explained Bob. "He left his machine in the road and I came very near smashing it—him, too."

Sally watched while the man and Bob examined the machine. Evidently the man had had a fall, for his arm

 was bleeding a little and his clothes
 were dusty and torn in a few minutes. Bob and the man came back to the car arguing.

"The only thing I can do for you is take you in to Warrenton," said Bob. "I haven't anything to fix it with."

"There won't be a station open this time of night," said the man querrulously. "That town goes to bed when the chickens do."

 Pennsylvania avenue.

General Hagood is recalled as the officer who once described WPA funds as "stage money," and thereby paved the way for ending
 his military career and beginning a literary career.

Hagood's idea was that war was no time for fuss, feathers and brass buttons. War is a time to get men in the field, skilled as well as they can be, in the time allowed,
 and ready with a serviceable
 weapon to meet the enemy.

Singes Sensitive Spot

IN A series of magazine articles
 as well as in a previous publication he singled the army's often most sensitive spot—the service of supply. He recalled that during the war the soldiers had to have a certain type of suit, the pants tight fitting around the lower leg, the same as now. Shoes had to conform to a certain last, be of uniform natural leather color, and tanned in a certain little used way.
 Buttons had to be of special material imported from abroad. The color had to be khaki.

General Hagood talks in terms of holding the enemy away from the door at the lowest possible cost in keeping with sound military practice. He said American mills, on short notice, could not make enough standard uniforms. He suggested that the army adopt styles of clothes which the mills
 could turn out at once at peak production. Overalls was one item.

Now to the army officer, to whom truncheon is next to God-
 dam, the thought of a battalion
 marching down the streets in loose flapping trousers was simply appalling.

May Seek Reheating

WHAT will come of Hagood's suggestion is problematical.
 The army's new national defense
 scheme contemplates mobilization of domestic production but makes no mention of flapping pants.

Hagood may have made his statement with a sardonic eye to prodding the army management into a soul-searching survey as to whether some of its "itus and so"
 regulations can be forgotten in time of war. Commanders often break them when they can't befit by them.

Hagood is probably right at least in one respect. If the enemy began laying out a barrage on Seattle or Newport News, chances are the defense would be mobilized in the best it could find in a hurry, without insisting on bottleneck pants.

TALKS TO PARENTS

Try, Try Again

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH
 The man or woman who has never known temptation and overcome it is not necessarily good. He is as negative as a reflection in a mirror. Strength of character comes from learning to face temptation and not yield. Often, however, one yields many times, falls and rises to try again, before the victory is won.

The important part of the struggle is not the falling, but the rising. In bringing up children, parents should bear this in mind and impress it upon the youngsters.
 Nothing is fatal or final so long as there is courage left to try again.

No matter what a child does, he must know that his parents are there behind him, ready to help him gather up the pieces and start again. In that knowledge often lies the child's one hope of salvation.

His parents may be annoyed,
 they may scold and punish, but they should never break a child's courage by admitting defeat themselves. They must always look ahead and build up his confidence
 in victory the next time.

Taken by and large, that is all that parents can do. They cannot be always at hand to guide and guard the child; they cannot outstep the past; they cannot force rules of conduct upon him. When he is very tiny, perhaps, they have a little more control and can start his feet in the straight and narrow path of virtue. But when he begins to go out into the world himself and comes to grips with reality, the parents are helpless. They can only hope their early training will meet the strain, and then be ready to encourage the youngster if he tumbles.

And they must be prepared for a lot of failures. The more character a child has, the more frequent and harder his falls. That is the way strength is gained and real
 men and women made.

Some of the girls are going to buy their husbands athletic underwear for Christmas so the men will walk to work and let them have the car.

One can land on page 1 by trying to pass a truck in an early morning fog, but will be in no condition to read the account.

It was a dark night, and after the breakdown he emerged from beneath the car gasping for breath. His helpful pal, holding the oil can, beamed on him.

Fal—I've just given the cylinder a thorough oiling, Tom.

Tom—Cylinder? That wasn't the cylinder, that was my ear.

The popularity of trailers in strange it's hard to make the driver hear when you yell directions from 'way back.

Traffic violation doesn't indicate daring, it indicates a very foolish head.

The taxi driver is good. No amateur can watch the road listening to the conversation on the back seat.

Read it or not: Automobile fatalities in 1933 were 14,411—in 1934, 33,980.

The automobile has put the hammock out of business. Time was when every home had a hammock or two. Now no one has any time to sit in a hammock. They are always in the family car going some place or coming back from some place.

A Christmas Wish
If I could do the things I'd rather do
To make complete your coming Christmas day,
I would not bring a single thing to you—

But I would come and take some things away.
I'd take away each trouble from your heart,
Each pain and sorrow I would have annulled;
And every word that caused a single smart,
And every hour through which you ever sulked.

I'd have them all be gone—forever gone—
Forgotten, like the things that cannot be;
And then each hour would be a happy one—
For only good things would be left, you see.

And this is what I'd really like to do—
If I could do whatever I wished for you.

After the other problems have had attention will someone please explain why so many motorists drive on the left side of the roads and so few pedestrians walk on it?

Old Gentleman—You're an honest lad, but it was a $10 bill I lost, not ten ones.

Small Boy—I know, mister, it was a $10 bill I picked up. But last time I found one, the man didn't have any change.

The devil has rich pickings with the man who thinks it is a sin to laugh and undignified to smile.

Clarence—So you asked Kathleen to marry you.
Friend—Yes, but I didn't have any luck. She asked me if I had any prospects.

Clarence—Why didn't you tell her about your rich uncle?
Friend—I did. Kathleen's my aunt now.

Some things we don't like:
A dim light,
A chilly room,
A little aliver of soap.

Youth—I dreamed last night that—er—ah—I proposed to you. I wonder what this is a sign of?

Sweet Young Thing—It's a sign that you have more sense when you are asleep than when you are awake.

Cost of Statue of Liberty
The famous Statue of Liberty, the concept of Bartholdi, the French sculptor, cost 1,000,000 francs exclusive of the cost of the pedestal (which was paid for in the United States), every sou of which was raised by popular subscription in France. The total cost of the statue mounted, including the $300,000 cost of the pedestal and foundation, subscribed voluntarily by American citizens, was $1,000,000. The statue in its youth was used as a light-house as well as a symbol, and not until 1902 was the care of the statue transferred to the War Department. Miss Liberty became a national monument in 1924, but the military police who are quartered at Fort Wood on Bedloe's island, still continued to guard the statue until 1933, when the maintenance and guardianship of the statue was switched to the National Park service.

Under Big Ben M. P.'s passed to laugh while muddling through the king's expense account. Edward had requested consideration of the "contingency" of his marriage. "So that in that event, there should be a provision for Her Majesty the Queen."

HEM AND ANY.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

Change of Hearts

Columbus, O.—Arthur C. Smith, 26, applied Saturday for a license to wed Garnet E. Breaker, 18.

On Monday he cancelled the application. Thursday he renewed the request and another license was issued.

Now the second license has been returned, unused.

First Hand Test

Covington, Ky.—Judge Johnst Northcutt played a slot machine in Kenton county circuit court and then ruled it was a gambling device.

He ordered the machine brought into court when an attorney asserted

it was not a gambling device and it was impossible to win from the machine.

"I found that out," remarked Judge Northcutt.

Print Filing

Chicago—One of the "three R's" will undergo modification in February in the first and second grades of the public schools.

The conventional loughand method of writing will give way to printing of letters of the alphabet. School officials said the "kinesthetic" or muscle sense method improves spelling. Pupils will trace letters in printed form until they get the "feel" of them.

Innovation

Minneapolis—A Minneapolis woman reversed the hit-run accident roles to the amazement of two policemen and Henry J. Staffa.

Staffa's car knocked the woman to the pavement. Believing her seriously injured, Staffa ran for aid. He returned with two officers just in time to see the woman jump to her feet, and run to a fence over which she disappeared.

It is frequently necessary to thicken one wall of a bathroom in order to provide room for the installation of a large soil pipe. In such cases a closet can be included in this space deep enough to hold small bathroom linen.

Mr. and Mrs. George N. LeFever celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Tuesday, December 15. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest LeFever and daughter of Kingston and Mr. and Mrs. Ray LeFever and Dr. Galvin helped them have a most happy day.

Mrs. Ira E. Williams, 99, of Saragosa, Tex., was a spy and dispatch bearer for Confederate forces during the Civil War. She smuggled guns through Northern lines but "never killed a man."

Cragmoor Women Share in Estate

New York, Dec. 18 (Special)—

Eloise S. Compton and Winifred Sturdevant of Cragmoor will share the income from a $93,000 trust fund left by their cousin, the late Kenneth L. Curtis, consulting engineer, whose property was appraised today by the State Transfer Tax Department. Each beneficiary is given power of appointment over one-half of the principal.

Other legatees are Clarissa Dryden of Bryn Mawr, Pa., who is bequeathed personal effects and Kenneth Wilder, a cousin, of Battle Creek, Mich., whose legacy is $1,000.

Mr. Curtis, who died last February 26, was a former teacher of electrical engineering at Stanford University. He was a grandson of Amos Denmore, inventor of the Denmore typewriter. He originated many devices for use on the Jackson-type stock ticker.

Property left by the testator was appraised today at $113,810 gross value and $94,964 net. His holdings included several patent devices.

Reviewing

MARCH 1936

By VOLTA TORREY

(AP Feature Service Writer)

(Third in a series)

Time, the old kopy man, darling down many nations' streets last March, must have smiled wryly, wanly.

Busy, broad Unter den Linden was hushed. From Loudspeakers Der Fuehrer's voice proclaimed: "Germany has regained her honor, re-found her faith, conquered the greatest economic distress and finally inaugurated a new cultural advance."

"The Ghost Goes West," said movie marquees. But worse than Glorrie was the ghost beside Herr Hitler. For even as he spoke men were marching westward as to war—into the Rhineland, an arena of hate and slaughter since the year 1843.

That was when Charlemagne's empire was divided into three parts, one to become France, another Germany, the third a "Middle Kingdom." Schoolboys know how that "Middle Kingdom's" ghost haunted Burgundy dukes, Charles the Bold, Louis XIV and Joseph II, embittered the long feud between Bourbons and Hapsburgs and robbed France's revolutionary armies of their winnings.

Flood Ravages East

Outside of Johnstown, Pa., streets where 2,200 died in 1889, fearful folk fled another flood.

In Pittsburgh's golden triangle, a swimmer could not have touched bottom. Without electricity, with no gas for stoves or steam for radiators, the city saw muddy water course through its store windows and fill two theaters to the balcony.

Down both sides of the Appalachian watershed the water roared: 13 states, including New England, counted the dead in the hundreds, the homeless by hundreds of thousands, and losses of $300,000,000.

A blizzard followed in the east; dust blew in its western bowl.

Edward Hinks Of Queen

Along America's Main street, Red Cross solicitors made their way. Forgotten for a time was the bonus glamor of Veterans of Future Wars and President Roosevelt's request for a new corporation tax to yield $1,614,000,000 a year.

Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., used a coast guard plane to meet Miss Ethel du Pont. Douglas Fairbanks married Lady Sylvia Ashley. Serge Mdivant was killed in a polo game.

Under Big Ben M. P.'s passed to laugh while muddling through the king's expense account. Edward had requested consideration of the "contingency" of his marriage. "So that in that event, there should be a provision for Her Majesty the Queen."

"May I ask," a Laborite asked, "whether His Majesty has given any guaranty that he is going to get married?"

Leaders were silent, merry old England jolly. Mrs. Wallis Simpson was still just Mrs. Simpson.

In Spain, a Granada beggar told of being mistreated by fascists. Soon leftists and rightists were fighting; 7 died, 32 were hurt.

On Fifth avenue, rude fellows laughed at Mrs. Gotrocks plodding and from her $1,000-a-month apartment and the sidewalks of New York because of an elevator men's strike.

In Broadway, first-nighters praised "Idiot's Delight."

Down lovers' lane, a Philadelphia teacher was being quoted: "A little petting would do some college girls a lot of good."

Historians may jot March, 1936, down, too, as the month a new naval treaty was signed in London, big industry was nationalized in Italy and television-telephone service began between Berlin and Leipzig.

HUSBAND KIDNAPED

Pretty, Wellesley-educated Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek was plunged into despair when revolting soldiers kidnaped the generalissimo who has been virtually dictator of China.

TRY, TRY AGAIN

Undaunted by the Reno ending of her "model marriage," Mrs. Sarah White Houghton, Beverly Farms, Mass., society belle, planned to wed again. Her neighbor, John Stewart McLennan, Jr., was to be the bridegroom. Before her first marriage she and her fiancé visited a divorce court to learn why marriage failed, then announced they would have a "model" wedded life.

FASHION NOTES

New York (AP)—Dolero jackets have staged a "come-back" in mid-season fashions. They vary all the way from the extremely short type trimmed in Dalmatian embroidery, gold-braided loops and velvet, to somewhat longer, plain-colored jackets edged in printed silks. Designers predict great popularity for them in the spring.

Paris (AP)—A brown chestnut buttonhole with green leaves gives a colorful accent to a white wool jacket designed by Marcel Rochas. The jacket tops a dress of brown wool. Large chestnut leaves are also flattened out against the shoulders of the dress—three to each shoulder.

New York (AP)—The camisole, or corset-cover, promises to come into popularity with the introduction of the new spring blouses. Because of the sheer quality of the materials which will be used in blouses more attention will have to be paid to the appearance of the undergarments.

Paris (AP)—Several advance spring frocks have long, wide scarfs that may be draped like small wraps and capes. Patou features a rust-colored print frock which has a long scarf attached to the neck in the back. The latter is faced with green crepe in the same print pattern as the frock itself.

RED POINSETTIA MEANS CHRISTMAS OVER THE WORLD

Poinsettias are as much symbols of Christmas as Santa Claus and the Christmas tree. Its blazing scarlet leaves, backed by brilliant green leaves, herald the festivities of the holiday season. We see it reproduced on gift wrappings, magazine covers, and paper imitations, but the most glorious of all is the plant itself.

The poinsettia is one of the loveliest Christmas gifts when supplied in a gayly colored pot, and tied with a ribbon and a sprig of holly. It supplies the need for a gift which is inexpensive, and at the same time luxurious. There is no need to worry whether an additional poinsettia plant is given, for at Christmas time several can be used to advantage, and they will provide a holiday atmosphere which no amount of colored crepe paper can give.

Red plants for Christmas are the order of the day. Try red Begonias, red primulas, red cyclamens and by all means the brilliant red poinsettias.

Full Skirts Swish On Frocks Made For Evenings At Resorts

FOR SOUTHERN EVENINGS

Ready to wear under southern moons is this colorful evening frock selected for display in the fifth annual Miami Biltmore fashion show in New York. It is made of white silk crepe splashed with blue and coral tropical flowers and caught with a cluster of chiffon blossoms of the same colors. The full skirt is typical of the resort trend.

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York (AP)—Playtime clothes for the south have received a "new deal" in glamor, charm and femininity.

The fabrics are new and amusing, colors vivid and gay and the designs calculated to give ultra feminine effect.

New evening frocks to wear under southern moons are made of frivolous nets, laces and chiffons with very full skirts which billow about the heels like so much frothy seafoam. Florida gold (yellow), a new jade similar to peacock blue, and cloud gray accented with cherry or jade are among the outstanding color effects, contrasting with the pale pastels of other seasons.

Sailcloth for Informality.

For more informal evenings aboard a boat or in a moonlit patio there are sailcloth frocks (vivid oranges, rust and turquoise) trimmed with upholstery braid and insouciant little dresses of crinkled organdy and dimity.

Beach clothes, selected for display in the Miami Biltmore fashion show in New York, repeat the feminine note. Although the selections indicate a toss-up between trousers and beach dresses for lazy lounging hours on the sand, the same emphasis on femininity, rather than masculinity, is apparent.

The new beach coats are ankle length, fitted and cut like an evening wrap. Full long circular capes also are seen. The linens and cottons which make them are gay in color and design—splashed with such nautical motifs as each shells, sea horses and anchors.

Peasant Frocks for Beach.

Beach frocks reflect the Tyrolean and Dalmatian peasant influences in their designs. One of the most striking combines a full rose colored linen skirt, with a close-fitting white linen top patterned with rose flowers and is worn with a kerchief tied over the head and under the chin. Black linen is another noteworthy item in beach frocks while orange also is making a bid for fame.

Slacks and plus fours answer the beach clothes question for those who want trousers. Flannel or linen plus fours with mess jacket tops and sharkskin or alpaca slacks worn with jackets are going to be seen on a great many beaches this winter.

Detachable Skirts.

Play skirts come in a bright colored smooth silk crepe which looks like jockey silk, and are designed with shirt and shorts in one piece. A detachable skirt makes them ready for the street or restaurant. Besides these there are scores of casual sports frocks of gay printed lacquered linens or soft silks in such shades as Mediterranean blue, dusty pink and white. Most of them are cut on some version of the favorite shirtwaist design.

Bright sailcloth scarfs and bags and new sandals which lace up to the ankle bone make up a wealth of colorful accessories to brighten the mode for southern sands.

Mrs. George Tells Best Way To Select And Fix A Turkey

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

Care in the selection of a turkey and in preparing it for cooking is important if the bird is to look and taste its best.

I had especially good results with the 11-pound hen turkey shown in the accompanying photograph. I selected that particular one because of its shiny black feet, soft pliable breastbone, fine yellow skin and plump breast which didn't have too much fat.

Hen turkeys up to 12 pounds are apt to be quite tender. Heavier they are likely to be tough due to age. A tom, however, may weigh 15 pounds or over and still be tender. (Our family prefers more white meat, which a hen turkey provides.)

The bird was thoroughly cleaned, singed and rinsed several times in cold water. Then it was wiped dry on the outside and inside—to prevent moisture from entering the stuffing.

The giblets were washed well, placed in a pan covered by four inches of cold water and simmered for one hour—until tender. They were later put in the gravy.

Don't Stuff Turkey.

I used one of my mother's old recipes for our favorite stuffing. It appears at the close of this article. I carefully placed the stuffing in the cavities of the turkey, since forcing it in does not leave room for expansion in cooking. Then I sewed the turkey together with a heavy white thread.

The next day I placed the turkey, breast side up, in a large roaster and baked it, uncovered, for 20 minutes in a hot oven. This initial baking seared the outside of the fowl, keeping the savory flavors and juices. After the first 20 minutes I put the lid on the roaster.

It is my custom to dip a clean white muslin cloth in hot water and cover turkeys I am cooking. I rinse out this cloth every 45 minutes during the baking period and then replace it.

Baste Often

Although many roasters do not make basting necessary, I always baste my turkeys once every 20 minutes. When the turkey is first placed in the roaster I pour one cup of boiling water over the cloth covering the fowl. Then I start basting with one cup of boiling water to which three tablespoons-

BASTING LIQUOR

Mrs. Alexander George, special food writer for the Kingston Daily Freeman, shows how to baste a Christmas turkey. She advocates basting every 20 minutes.

ful of butter have been added. Every 20 minutes I pour three or four tablespoons of this liquid over the cloth. When it is used up there are sufficient drippings in the roaster for the remainder of the basting.

Since long, slow cooking is best for turkeys, our 11-pound hen was roasted for five hours.

Lady's Turkey Stuffing

2 one-pound loaves of white bread, 2 1/2 cup butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper.

Break bread loaves apart and let them stand over night in the air to dry out. In the morning carefully remove all crumbs. (Do not use crusts.) Crumble the bread until it is very fine. Moisten bread and add to the crumbs, mixing lightly with a fork. Add salt and paprika. The remainder stuffing has a delicious flavor due to the butter and seasonings. It is also very light and is never soggy.

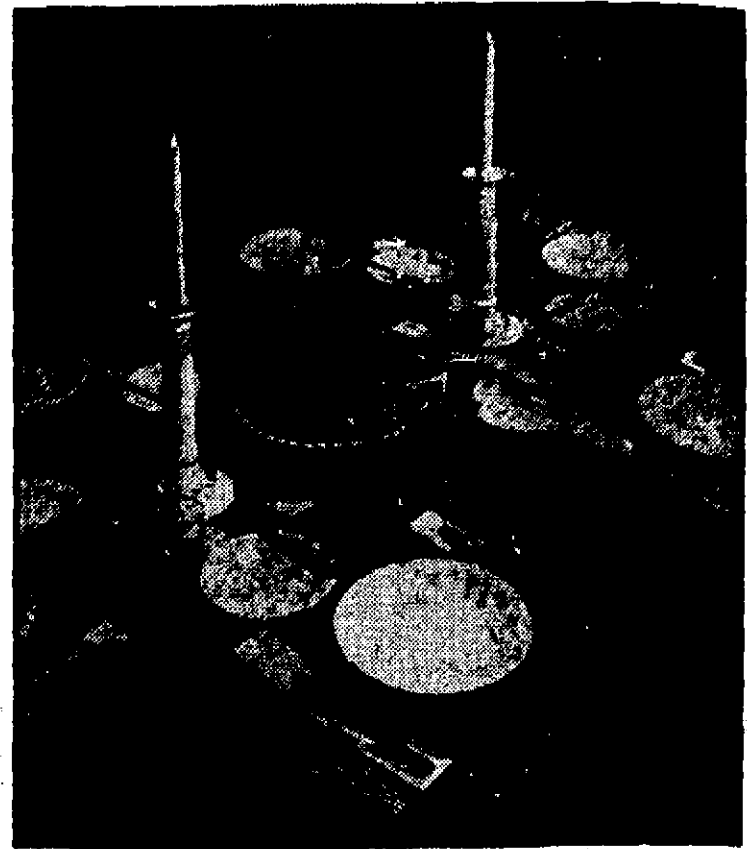

Christmas cookies can be worked out in amusing designs. An outline of Santa with a sack on his back may be traced on dough. After baking, the sack may be "filled" with torn shavings of bits of candy granules held in place by a tiny bit of icing. Features on Santa's face may be traced on the baked cookies by the use of a small wood pick on which frostings of various colors are applied. Raisins, nuts and figs may also be utilized.

A good canyap spread is made by mixing chopped ripe olives with Roquefort cheese. This can also be spread on crackers.

To remove cranberry stains from linens, stretch the stained portion across a bowl. Then hold a kettle about a foot away from the bowl and pour a stream of boiling water through the stain until it disappears. Other fruit stains may also be removed in this manner.

Buffet Combinations Make Tempting Christmas Supper

CHRISTMAS NIGHT TABLE

A bowl of appetizing fruit is a simple but effective centerpiece for the informal Christmas night supper table. Rough linen mats in bright colors make an attractive background for the cream-colored china.

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE

Christmas night supper in the home where there are holiday guests can be made almost as delightful as the Christmas dinner.

The hostess, seeking to tempt turkey-jaded appetites, may easily prepare foods quite different from those she served at the noon meal.

A salad platter of crisp vegetables or fish, a tray of relishes, assorted cheeses and a variety of wafers

A Welsh rabbit and a bowl of fruit—all of these combinations are a pleasing deviation from the usual pickup of holiday dinner leftovers. Coffee, tea, chocolate or cider may complete the menu.

The kitchen is often a cozy gathering place—especially if the guests help to make their own sandwiches from an assortment of fillings and breads conveniently placed about.

Fillings Are Suggested

From the following list of fillings you may find several which will fit into your menu:

Minced ham and pickled relish, liverwurst mixed with cream, sliced cold meats, creamed cheese and olives, minced celery and shrimp, Swiss cheese and slices of dill pickle, minced onions blended with French dressing, sliced tomatoes and lettuce, cheese and dates, orange marmalade and cream cheese, scrambled eggs and broiled bacon bits.

Any of these mixtures may be spread on hot buttered toast or crackers. Or they may be used as fillings for bread or toast sandwiches. Steamed and home-baked breads are especially good made into sandwiches. Among them are nut, date, prune, raisin, fig, orange, banana-bran or Boston brown breads. Since all of them will remain moist for several days they may be made a day before being used.

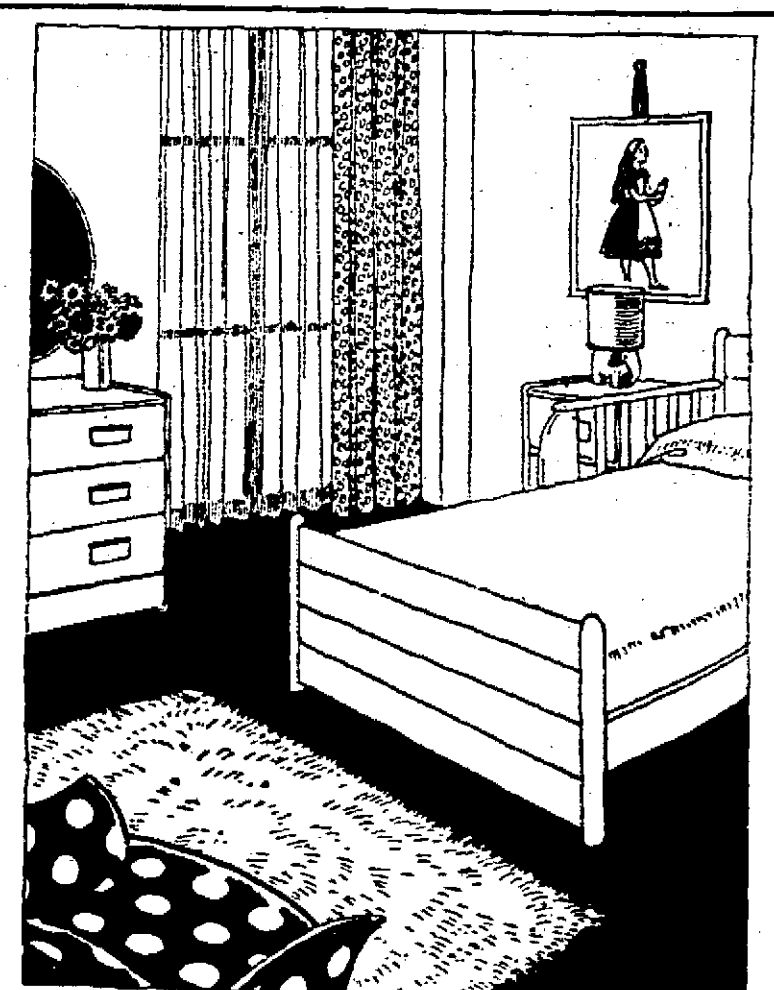

Buffet Suppers Popular

The hostess may prefer a buffet supper with foods previously prepared for Christmas night, however. In that case she may plan jellied fish or fruit salad molds, a gaily-garnished baked ham, trays of relishes, a variety of piquant sandwiches, the cheese biscuits or small hot rolls, a sherbet and a plentiful supply of Christmas cakes, cookies and confections.

Since informality is always linked with Yuletide festivities the most informal the supper is the better. In the dining room or on tables in the various other rooms where the guests can help themselves.

Dishes of cracked nuts, figs, raisins, dates (stuffed or plain), salted nuts, candied fruit peels, cookie sliced fruit and pound cakes, assorted fruits and doughnuts will also prove popular.

Medium-Sized Furniture Now Made For Children

CHILD-SIZED FURNISHINGS

Sympathetic designers are giving the growing child furniture, like this bedroom set, more suited to his needs. It resembles that of the grown-ups but is scaled to a more comfortable size.

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES

Prepared by McCall's Magazine For The Freeman. It took parents and teachers a long time really to understand that a child is neither a baby nor a grown-up. Now even the furniture designers

Of course, it never was practical to let a little baby sleep in a bed or to bathe it in a large bathtub; so we've always had baby-size things, but in the good old days, the five-year-old was suddenly thrust into a world of grown-up furniture.

Now, psychologists no longer need to shudder at the terrible effects which this living in the wrong size world may have on a child. There are furniture makers who are specially specializing in "youth furniture" for the growing child—beds, dressers and chairs scaled to a comfortable size and decorated according to youngsters' ideas of what furniture should be.

Beds, for instance, are just like grown-up beds, but a foot or so shorter and several inches narrower, leaving more floor space for play. There are steps to the bed and rails on the sides for the smallest child and these can be removed when no longer needed. And boys will like the double-decker beds; some can be separated when climbing is no longer fun.

Chairs fit bodies; dresser drawers can be reached; mirrors are at eye level.

All have good lines, charm and dignity and train the child to good taste in home decoration. Most of the popular woods can be had—maple, walnut and pine, and the good colors. While youth furniture centers in the traditional styles, the modern designs are perhaps just as modern like its simplicity and freedom—and it helps them get acrossed to the furniture of the future.

Ham Baked With Spices
15-pound ham 1/2 cup vinegar
24 whole cloves 1 cup grape-juice
1 teaspoon cinnamon 1/2 cup lemon-juice
1 cup dark brown sugar 1/2 cup butter

Scrub ham, cover by 4 inches with cold water. Slowly bring to boil. Cover and simmer 2 hours. Let ham cool in stock, remove ham and discard rind and part of the fat. Place ham, fat side up, in baking pan. Stick with cloves and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Add rest of ingredients. Cover and bake 2 hours in moderately slow oven. Baste every 20 minutes. Remove cover and bake 30 minutes to brown top.

If preferred, the ham can be baked without the first cooking and about 4 1/2 hours of very slow baking will be required.

Cranberry Mold
4 cups berries 2 cups sugar
1 cup water

Wash berries, add water and boil until soft. Press through sieve and add sugar to berry pulp. Boil 4 minutes. Pour into ring mold. If none is available, use a round mold. Chill until firm (overnight is best). Unmold on serving platter, garnish with curls of celery. Fill center with apple mixture. If a round mold is used, remove part of center to form a case for the filling.

Apple Mixture

1 cup diced celery 1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup butter 1/2 cup salad dressing

Chill ingredients, add half the dressing to rest of ingredients. Fill the berry mold and top with rest of dressing.

"Parting of Ways," Odd

Celebration for Wales

An odd annual celebration held in the mountain villages of Wales before the "Hiring Fairs," and an observance similar to the American Halloween, is the "Parting of the Ways," and marks the end of the yearly contract between farmers and their hired hands.

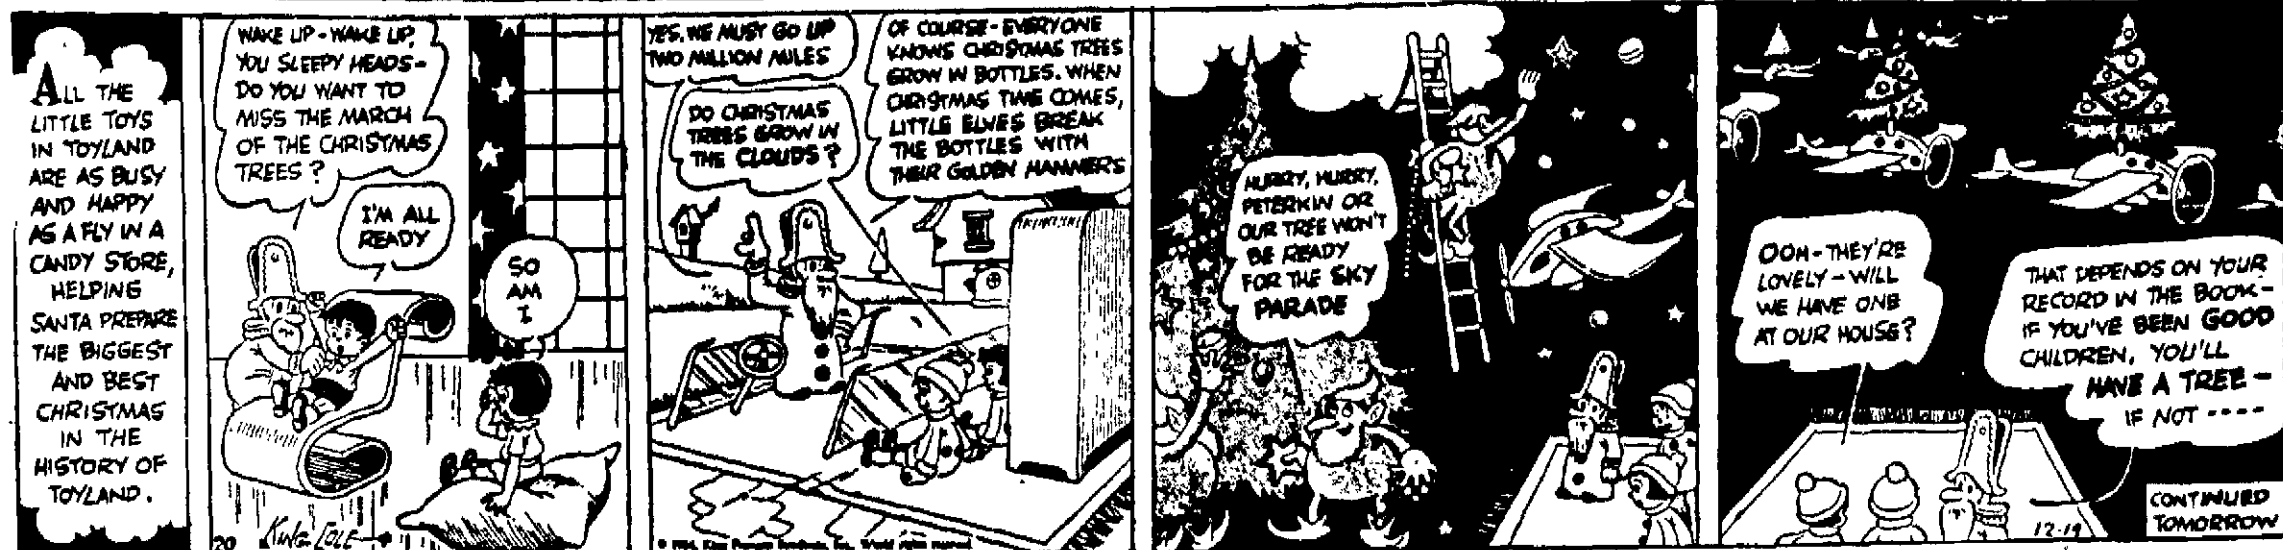

Older people that evening sit about peat fires telling tales of the other days, while boys and girls celebrate their release from work by dressing in each other's clothes, blackening their faces to frighten those about the fires and ducking in tubs of water for apples and small coins.

This is a night of fun and merry-making, but the Hiring Fairs are more serious business. On those days young men and women who wish to hire out for the next year assemble under the Town Clock in Aberystwyth, spending the early hours discussing their previous employers.

Farmers, too, wander about comparing notes with one another, praising or condemning their old hired hands. Before long, however, all are busy discussing wages and contracts for the coming year and by noon the hiring is almost over. The region of the Town Clock deserted and Aberystwyth ready again to settle into its usual routine.

Santa and the Viking

THE STORY SO FAR: Toyland

is hopelessly snowed in because the ice Queen is angry at Santa. He has helped Nils, the Viking, rescue his daughter from the ice Queen's palace.

Chapter 12
The Sun Attacks

The next morning the sun came racing back to Toyland to finish his job of melting the snow under which Santa's toyshop was buried.

He hung so low in the sky that the snow sparkled like a million diamonds. Snow drip-dripped from the toyshop roof. The huge pile grew lower and lower until the sun had almost reached the toyshop windows.

Thawed Out
Suddenly a hole began to appear in the snow pile, and the sun saw a shovel leaning against it. Then a red cap appeared, and then Santa's round face. He had finished his tunnel.

"Hi!" he shouted to the sun. "What happened?"
"What happened?"
"Don't ask me," said the sun. "I'm just doing my best to get you out."
Just then the sky was filled with clouds, and in a minute they were both wrapped in darkness. The sun kept on shining brightly, but Santa hurried back through his snow tunnel.
"So, you thought you could undo

SMOOTH SERENITY

HOLLYWOOD—Along the local grapevine one hears that James Stewart, the pride of Indiana, Pa., is not so greatly appreciated on his home studio lot as he might be, considering the excellent impression he has made in the various roles assigned to him.

This may be because that lot is the studio domicile of the year's outstanding comet, Robert Taylor, in whose glittering wake less meteoric box office attainments might be slighted.

Whatever the cause, Stewart now is in a fair way to remedy this. He is on loan to play the role of Chico in "Seventh Heaven" opposite Simone Simon. And movie history has only to repeat itself, as well-behaved history should, to send Stewart to the top—"if 'Born to Dance' does not turn that trick for him in advance.

Skyrocketed Janet Gaynor

Ten years ago this picture in silent form took two practically unknown young people, Janet

Gaynor and Charlie Farrell, and made them the screen's foremost romantic team for the next six years at least.

Frank Borzage directed them. The other day Henry King put the talkie version in work in cramped quarters: a mouldy, damp, crawly set representing an underground sewer in Paris.

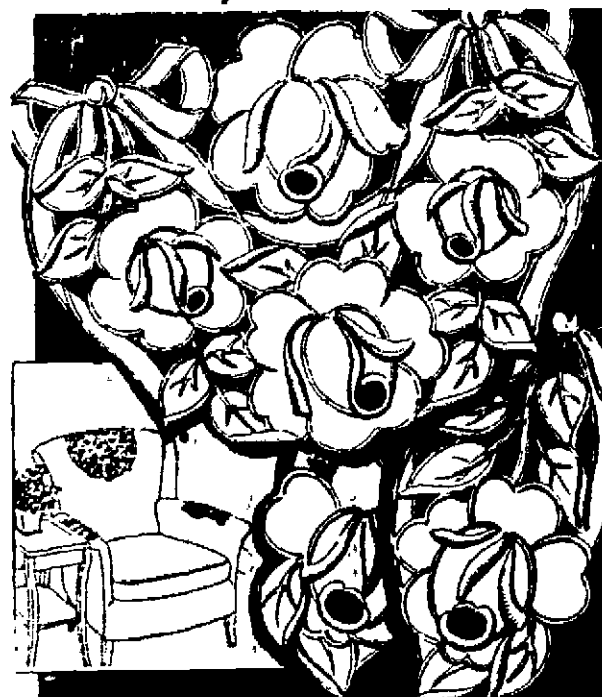

Here the Sewer Rat (John Qualen) and Chico, son of the streets, are introduced to the camera. Between takes, they sun themselves outside the enclosed set, and compare notes on costumes and make-up. And a fine pair they are, ragged and begrimed. Qualen especially, with his red nose and pink-grained eyelids.

"It isn't how long it takes to put it on," says Stewart, "but how long to get clean again. I feel scrummy—apologetic when I go to the dining room. My dirt rubs off on the tablecloths."

"I don't go to the dining room," says Qualen. "I live close enough to go home for lunch—and I eat in the backyard."

Their clothes, sanitarily new, have been run through the studio dirt mill. Wrinkled and tattered, the garments are sprayed with Fuller's earth, grease paint, and discoloring acids. Stewart and Qualen will feel "scrummy" for several weeks.

WRITING CHARMING LETTERS

Do people say when they read your letters, "What a delightful person!"? Yes, if you know the simple rules for sparkling letters.

How can you be fascinating in an informal invitation? Say, "Dear Mrs. Brown, We're so eager to see you and Mr. Brown again. Can you come to dinner Friday at 7:30? We're at 21 Oak street. I'm sure you'll find the driving smoother by way of Maple avenue."

"Tom may drag us off to the hockey game afterward so don't wear your best job and tuckers."

This brief invitation is gracious, clearly states time, place, how to get there. It thoughtfully suggests what to wear—of there's any doubt about that.

How to write a heart-warming thank-you note? Brown, "Do not let your words have thought of sending these adorable notes—the first I've ever had. And all these years that I've pad-dodged in dowdy felt slippers. I've yearned for tap-tapping music. Thank you from my heart."

This really gives the three "musts" of a correct thank-you: Appreciation of the giver's thoughtfulness, thanks for the gift, special reasons for liking it.

Be sure and save for a sick friend. Write of simple, everyday things she can't see or hear while she's—high lights of the movie you saw, what the group said.

Our 40-page booklet is a guide to etiquette, style, business, endings for every type of letter. Sample letters to inspire you. End your letter-writing woes.

At The Theatres

Today

Broadway: "Tarzan Escapes." To the thump of jungle drums, the superman Tarzan as exemplified by Johnny Weissmuller stalks his primitive way through another adventure picture whose setting is the jungle country of Africa. This show has to do with the capture of Tarzan and his eventual escape from his captors in the nick of time, all done with remarkable scenic effects. The show is alive with thrills, and with wild animals running hither and yon at the beck and call of Tarzan and it also possesses an entertaining story of greedy white men and a girl who teaches Tarzan the glory of love and civilization. The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios went to considerable expense to make this picture and out of the ordinary spectacle and it is recommended to everyone with a yen for imaginative adventure. The action is melodramatic and well sustained and Maureen O'Sullivan makes an effective heroine.

Kingsdon: "Old Hutch." Wallace Beery, who hasn't been working before the cameras of late, returns in a form fitting role that is as good or better than anything he has done. In the character of shiftless "Old Hutch," he stumbles across a hidden loot of $100,000 while fishing one day and fearful that others may know his good fortune he hides the money again until one day he can get rid of it without suspicion. But gangsters discover his hidden loot and "Old Hutch" is forced into the difficult task of cashing the money. The show is briskly entertaining and Mr. Beery gives a realistic characterization in the starring role. His supporting cast includes Robert McWade, Julie Perkins, James Burke, Elizabeth Patterson, Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker. An M-G-M. film directed by J. Walter Ruben.

Orpheum: "Frisco Kid" and "Roaring Guns." James Cagney, plus a wig, plays the role of a rowdy in the days when the Barbary Coast was booming with growing pains and Mr. Cagney comes out of the east to conquer the San Francisco hell of yesterday with the help of a good right arm and plenty of courage. The show is pure melodrama, filled with fights, mob violence, romance, comedy and a gusty charm that typifies the California of that day. A fine cast supports the star and the whole show is entertaining and enjoyable. "Roaring Guns" is the associate feature with Tim McCoy.

Tomorrow

Broadway: Same.
Kingsdon: Same.
Orpheum: "Two in the Dark" and "Last Outlaw." A man's lost memory causes unending havoc in the best of the features at the Orpheum, a well acted adventure yarn with Margot Grahame and Walter Abel. It is mystifying and filled with a suspense that never slackens because of the excellence of the acting and directing. "The Last Outlaw" is a story of the west with veterans Harry Carey and Hoot Gibson sharing the honors.

Lafayette's Visit to Ohio
When Gen. Lafayette stopped at Gallipolis, Ohio, during his tour of America in 1825, the residents there did not wish to be outdone by any other community in showing their esteem. So one of their gestures was the stretching of a beautiful carpet from the boat landing to the top of the river bank for their distinguished guest. But democratic Lafayette, when he stepped off the boat, ignored the carpet and trudged to the top of the bank through the mud, amid the cheers of his hosts.

Notables Used Mahogany
Mahogany was intimately associated with the founding of the important duties in the drafting of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. Patrick Henry, who challenged "Give me liberty or give me death," later died in a mahogany chair. At Appomattox, both Gen. Grant and Lee used mahogany chairs in their historical meeting and a mahogany writing table was used by George Mason on which he wrote the Virginia Bill of Rights.

Born To Be Queen

Princess Reigns Now As 'Queen Of Hearts'

Princess Elizabeth
By CHARLES NORMAN
AP Feature Service Writer
(Last in a Series)

Like the Virgin Queen of England who ruled in a time of greatness and glory for Britons, 10-year-old Princess Elizabeth, heir-apparent to the throne, is the child of a royal father and of a commoner mother.

But with this fact, save in the dreams of Englishmen for another "Queen Bess," all similarities between the two Elizabeths as children end.

The queen who ruled England in its "glorious days" of the sixteenth century was a lonely, close-confined child of three when her mother, Anne Boleyn, died in her youth and beauty on the scaffold on Tower Hill, victim of Henry VIII's wrath.

Her namesake has had the devoted care of a lovely mother all her life, and occasionally for nursemaid a reigning sovereign. Queen Mary, when her parents traveled to the empire's outposts as living symbols of the crown when they were merely the Duke and Duchess of York.

Taught By Queen Mary
From the day of her birth on April 21, 1926, Princess Elizabeth has had all the attention and training which could be accorded a royal personage who one day might rule the British empire. For this reason she has never stepped inside the schools maintained for the children of English aristocrats, receiving her education at home from private tutors. No less an instructor than Queen Mary has she had in deportment and in diplomatic etiquette and conversation.

Reading, writing and arithmetic, French and dancing and knitting and attendance at state functions have been her lot. She loves to see soldiers on parade, the changing of the guard at the palace, trooping of the colors, and all the pomp and pageantry of royal life. But though she has been closely guarded against contaminating influences, her high spirits and natural imperiousness of manner have been defensive mechanisms against "stiffness."

Finds Arithmetic Hard
Arithmetic makes her frown; she doesn't like it, and in this she is like many another little girl. She studies from 9:30 until noon, then goes for a drive after lunch.

It is believed that like her great-grandmother, Victoria, she will be sent abroad for "finishing."

"GOOD QUEEN BESS" England can never forget "Good Queen Bess's Glorious Days." Will an Elizabeth II bring them back?

Meanwhile her charm and the sprightliness of her conversation have captured the hearts of the people over whom she may some day reign.

Once, in a theatre with her grandmother, Queen Mary threatened to send her home on the instant if she didn't behave better.

"I can't go home now," she said to have replied. "Think of all the people who will be waiting to see me."

"Its Royalty Speaking"
Once the captain of the guard, standing stiffly before her, asked if he could dismiss his weary men.

"Yes, please," she said, then turned quickly to the Queen and asked: "Did I tell him loud enough?"

When she refused to obey her governess, and persisted even after she was unbraided for it, she excused herself by saying: "It's royalty speaking."

Not for nothing has Sir James Barrie called her "the most gracious lady in the land." Her blue eyes and golden hair, her clothes which have set the fashion for the world of children everywhere, and her vivaciousness have charmed the people of the empire.

IT'S ROYALTY WAVING BACK Princess Elizabeth responded to the crowd's cheers like a veteran when she went to Southampton with the royal family last May to inspect the giant H.M. Queen Mary.

The Ozarks comprise about 24,000 square miles in Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas. On Mount Waialeale, Hawaii, 452 inches of rain fall annually while 12 miles away the fall is only 5 inches.

Meaning of "Feet of Clay"
"Feet of clay" comes from Biblical usage. Figuratively it is applied to the more earthly and baser side of human nature. "He has learned that his idol has feet of clay" is said of a person who is disappointed or disillusioned. Daniel II, 32, 33 and 34, says: "This image's head was of fine gold, his breast and his arms of silver, his belly and his thighs of brass, his legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay. Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces." In the holy city of Benares, India, there is a god whose "feet of clay" are washed each year by the priests after being washed away by the Ganges.

Sun Ray Plant in Ellenville Sold

Harold Gottfried and associates of New York city this week purchased from the White Rock Mineral Springs Company the Sun Ray plant in Ellenville, and plan to convert the building into a modern brewery at an estimated cost of $125,000. Alterations will start in the early spring and will require approximately five months to complete.

The new owners of the Sun Ray plant are connected with the Gottfried Baking Company, one of the largest independent bakers in the country.

Mr. Gottfried and his associates about four months ago took over the old Peter Barmann brewery here and have completely re-equipped the plant. Only beer will be produced there, and production will start early next year.

The Sun Ray plant will have a production capacity of 100,000 barrels of ale annually. The Sun Ray plant is a three-cornered elevator building with a floor area of 90,000 square feet. The building covers a site of 40,000 square feet, with an adjoining property covering about 50 acres. The building is now occupied by the Shell Metal Works, who it is said, have a long term lease on the premises. About 10 men are reported working for the metal plant at the recent time.

Plaque Committee Wins 4-Year Tilt With Col. Greene

Albany, Dec. 19 (Special).—The Washington Bi-Centennial Commission, of which Senator Arthur H. Wicks, of Kingston, is vice chairman, has won a four-year battle with Col. Frederick Stuart Greene, state superintendent of Public Works, to place a plaque with names on it, on the monument of George Washington, erected in 1922 on the plaza in front of the State Office Building here.

The plaque, made of bronze, bears the name of Senator Wicks, and other members of the commission. It is lettered as follows:

"By His Faith in God and Man He Built Our Nation: Erected in 1922 by the New York State Commission for the Celebration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington."

The inscription also includes the names of Governor Roosevelt, Lieutenant Governor Lehman, Dr. Frank P. Graves, commissioner of education, Charles J. Tobin, of Albany, chairman of the commission, and Senator Wicks.

It is understood that the State Division of Architecture, unbeknown to officials in the Division of Public Buildings, hired a stone cutter the other day to chip out a piece of granite, in the base of the statue, for a new bronze plaque, which was subsequently set in without ceremony.

The new plaque was designed and lettered under the direction of Col. Greene, who on two previous occasions rejected plaques which the Bi-Centennial Commission had sought to place on the monument. The battle between Col. Greene and the commission resulted in considerable discussion a few years ago.

Mr. Tobin, chairman of the commission, Senator Wicks and their associates, bought the statue with state funds, and presented it to the state. Later a bill was introduced in the legislature authorizing a plaque bearing the names of all the members of the commission. This measure failed, but the commission proceeded with having the plaque made. When an attempt was made to affix it to the monument, Colonel Greene prevented it.

The colonel opposed the placing of any plaque as "unnecessary" on a statue of Washington, but objected more particularly to the inclusion of names, including state senators and assemblymen. After the commission had twice failed to get its preferred type of plaque on the monument, Colonel Greene had the stone, which had already been chipped to receive the plaque, removed and another, blank stone substituted for it.

Originally the commission's plaque contained 15 names, while the plans of a second plaque, likewise rejected by the colonel, contained only a few names.

Meet Ancient Corn That of Pre-Incas of Peru

How, when and where corn was domesticated are three questions often asked but never answered, asserts an authority. Though there is no such thing as primitive corn, the oldest ears known are as highly developed botanically and as completely divorced from wild plants as the best of our commercial varieties.

The most ancient corn known is that of the pre-Incas of Peru. Well preserved ears in the graves of these people duplicate the varieties grown in the same region today. A thousand or more generations have made no changes. Charred corn from the Mound Builders of the Ohio valley resembles corn grown by Indians in the Middle West.

The nearest relative to Indian corn known to botanists is the grass generally known by its Aztec name of teosinte. But if corn developed from teosinte, the manner of development can only be surmised. It is believed, however, that the advance of genetic knowledge may unravel the mystery of maize.

Another institution we Americans do very well without is a King's Tree.

Newton Science

On Tuesday afternoon, December 15, a meeting of the Newton Science Club was held under the supervision of Miss Kinkade, science instructor. President Edwin McManus took charge. After the business meeting, the guest speaker, Howard Kinch, was introduced. He began by demonstrating the ability of making finger prints visible by sprinkling a grayish powder upon the surface where finger marks were pressed. Then he carefully brushed the powder away with a fine camel's hair brush. He explained with the use of charts, how finger prints are clarified. Experiments have so developed a method of classification that if a duplicate set of finger prints is sent into Washington, they can be identified within three minutes. To efficiently take finger prints, he spreads a thin layer of printer's ink on a piece of glass with a rubber roller. The fingers are pressed on this, one at a time, and then on a specially prepared card. Mr. Kinch said that two finger prints have never been found to be exactly identical. The Newton Science Club appreciated the fine demonstration very much.

Prisma
On Friday, December 18, the Prisma organization presented Superintendent Van Ingen with $25 to be used in an eye-glass fund for the needy. The Prisma representative was Helene Gregory, who explained that the "Blue Forest" was presented last year in order to procure funds for this purpose, but through unfortunate circumstances, they were able to donate very little. Mr. Van Ingen accepted the gift, and expressed his sincere appreciation for it, and also for the Christmas cheer fund to which both Prisma and Homeon individually donated.

In the contest for girls, sponsored by Prisma, about 24 girls won prizes, which were tickets to hear V. L. Granville in his "Dramatic Inter-ludes," presented in the Crystal Ball Room of the Governor Clinton Hotel, Thursday evening, December 17.
